SOUL LINK RETREAT

“Revival: Breathing New Life into Tired Souls”

Because many churches are in a survival mode, holding tightly to a narrow understanding of conventional beliefs, teachings, and devotions, an increasing number of people are seeking sustenance for their souls outside of institutional religion. Soul Link has become a community for many who take their spiritual life seriously, and who want to share their journey with others. It is important to gather with those who share our questions and longings, for the pushes and pulls of our fast-paced lives easily kidnap us from our deeper, spiritual identity and sap the strength of our souls. It is for this reason that Soul Link’s winter retreat will be a REVIVAL With Joe Uveges providing the music, we will attempt to enliven our souls through a little singin’, a little preachin’ (very little), a little healin’ (just kidding), and the exchange of ideas regarding various aspects of the spiritual life (God, faith, prayer, etc.). This gathering promises to be entertaining, insightful, and inspirational.

From For the Time Being by Annie Dillard

“Spiritual path” is the hilarious popular term for those night-blind mesas and flayed hills in which people gope, for decades on end, with the goal of knowing the absolute. They discover others spread under the stars and encamped here and there by watch fires, in groups or alone, in the open landscape; they stop for a sleep, or for several years, and move along without knowing toward what or why. They leave whatever they find, picking up each stone, carrying it a while, and dropping it gratefully and without regret, for it is not the absolute, though they cannot say what is. Their life’s fine, impossible goal justifies the term “spiritual.” Nothing, however, can justify the term “path” for this bewildered and empty stumbling, this blackened vagabondage - except one thing: they don't quit; they stick with it. Year after year they put one foot in front of the other, though they fare nowhere. Year after year they find themselves still feeling with their fingers for lumps in the dark.

The planet turns under their steps like a water wheel rolling; constellations shift without anyone's gaining ground...Their feet catch in nets; they untangle them when they notice, and keep moving. They hope to learn where they came from...Decade after decade they see no progress. But they do notice, if they look, that they have left doubt behind. Decades ago, they left behind doubt about this or that doctrine, abandoning the issues as unimportant. Now, I mean, they have left behind the early doubt that this feckless prospecting in the dark for the unseen is a reasonable way to pass one's life.

"What we grasp leads to knowledge. What grasps us leads to wisdom." - Bernard of Clairveau

"The moment we definitely commit ourself then Providence moves, too." - Goethe

"Who is more foolish, the child afraid of the dark or the adult afraid of the light?" - Maurice Freehill

"Nobody can make you feel inferior without your consent". - Eleanor Roosevelt

"Never put a period where God has put a comma." Gracie Allen

"Don't look for the sacred in external forms or in what you think you know...mystery...can't be reduced to dogma, confined to houses of worship, or known by the rational mind alone." - Rabbi Rami Shappiro

Books For the Journey

Prayer From a Nonbeliever* by Julia Camerson (Tarcher, Putnam)

This is the inspiring story of an anonymous "modern" soul, as told through a series of impassioned letters to God. Following in the tradition of Letters to a Young Poet and Conversations with God, it is the bestselling artist-author Julia Camerson's most inspiring book to date.

Mystic Street: Meditations on a Spiritual Path* by Steve Georgiou (Twenty-Third Publications)

Written with prayerful simplicity, Mystic Street is a Christian's interior journey filled with a wonderful, innovative blend of tradition and modern revelations. It is a collection of spiritual vignettes filled with interreligious insights.

For the Time Being* by Annie Dillard (Random House)

Why do we exist? Where did we come from? How can one person matter? Dillard searches for answers in a powerful array of images...Vivid, eloquent, haunting. For the Time Being evokes no less than the terrifying grandeur of all that remains tantalizingly and troublingly beyond our understanding.

Sustainability

'Sustainability' is a word generally associated with the environment, but it is also applicable in other arenas. Some respected thinkers suggest that religion and spirituality are losing the ability to sustain themselves in meaningful ways for the future. The "greening" of our individual and collective soul is our responsibility now, and a gift we can offer to generations that will follow. If you are interested in meeting with others to discuss this timely topic and to investigate a new paradigm for our spiritual lives, call Soul Link at 776-2672.
